How to Keep Cool

Is asked by every one during these summer days. The seaside and mountain retreats offer a solution of this question.

But none of these are complete unless you avail yourself first of the right kind of material to wear.

For our August offerings of requisites we have chosen exceptionally SUITABLE ARTI-CLES and recommend them for their Usefulness, Reasonable Price and Desirable Quality.

TO DRESS WELL AT MODERATE COST

Is a problem that must be faced by many.

Our Success

Has been largely due to the fact that we furnish

The first few swallows should be small and within a few seconds' intervals of each other, but till last half should be taken in as large gulps as possible, with the body erect and chest well thrown out.

The principal benefit derivable from this practice is perhaps the mechanical flushing out of the undigested contents and the absorption of the additional water into the circulating system, although some of the good effects may be attributable to the small quantity of the secretions of the mouth, which is incidentally carried down, and the local topic influence of the water. Whatever may be the rationale of this treatment its efficacy as a promoter and preserver of health is second to none. The body should not be prone again for at least three-quarters of an hour after drinking. The temperature of the water may, as a matter of taste, be disagreeable at first, but that objection will soon become insignificant before a little resolution. Rest in the Barber's Chair.

There is one place in which even in the midst of the busiest day the most hurried men rest, and that is in the barber's chair. No matter what cares and perplexities, what schemes and anxieties fill the mind, the moment the soft fingers of the barber begin to pass over the face there comes a full in the turmoil of the brain, and for a blessed quarter of an hour there is quiet in the cerebral cells. - Boston Courier.

In the Breakfast Room If practicable have the breakfast room face the morning sun, and in the window set some blooming plants, to be replaced by others when they cease to blossom. A Fun Loving Seal.

The mother seal at the Zoo got rather gny Sunday afternoon while a big crowd of ladies, gentlemen and children was standing around engerly watching the buby seal. The mother seal would watch and see where the crowd was thickest, slide quietly under the water, come up close as possible to where the crowd was, and then, with seemingly pure deviltry, jump up and spinsh the water in such a way as to cover and wet every one within twenty feet. And it kept this sort of fun up all the after noon. No matter on which side of the tank the crowd got, the seal would make a quiet sneak under the water, and then, quick as lightning, show up near the crowd and get in its funny business.-Cincinnati
